Introduction

The Aboriginal Education and Training Policy is a new policy which defines the NSW Department of Education and Training’s commitments to Aboriginal education and training in schools (including where relevant, preschools), TAFE Institutes and community education settings. It was developed in collaboration with key partners, including Aboriginal communities, to provide policy advice for all employees of the Department. It fulfils a commitment to review the Aboriginal Education Policy 1996 (Schools) made in response to the Aboriginal Education Review.

The Policy highlights the need for all staff to focus on three guiding elements for its effective implementation:
• Relationships
• Engagement
• Ongoing Learning.

To put these elements into context, decision making and service delivery will need to be undertaken with consideration of Relationships and Engagement (especially with Aboriginal people and communities) within an inclusive environment of Ongoing Learning.

The new Policy prioritises:
• Aboriginal education and training as the core business of all Departmental staff
• increasing cultural competencies in Aboriginal cultures for all staff
• an acceleration and maintenance of the Department’s progress in achieving its goal that ‘by 2012, Aboriginal student outcomes will match or better outcomes of the broader student population’.

The priorities which shape the Aboriginal Education and Training Policy complement and reflect those that are integral to other major plans and strategies that guide the work of the Department of Education and Training (see Appendix Three).

These other major plans, strategies and statements include:
• State Plan: A new direction for NSW
• NSW Department of Aboriginal Affairs Plan 2003-2012, Two Ways Together
• NSW Department of Education and Training’s
  o Corporate Plan 2009-2011
  o NSW Aboriginal Education and Training Strategy
  o Aboriginal Human Resource Development Plan
• the Ministerial Council on Education, Employment, Training and Youth Affairs’ Australian Directions In Indigenous Education 2005–2008
• NSW Aboriginal Education Consultative Group Inc Securing a Collaborative Partnership into the Future.

In referring to Aboriginal people, this Policy refers inclusively to all Aboriginal Australians and Torres Strait Islander people.
The Purpose

The purpose of the Introductory Guide is to provide direction and context for the introduction of the Aboriginal Education and Training Policy.

Support for the introduction and implementation of the Aboriginal Education and Training Policy will occur in a staged process over three ‘steps’. The process begins in November 2008 and will continue throughout 2009-2011 and beyond.

Three steps for implementation:

- Step 1 Introducing the Policy (Beginning November 2008)
- Step 2 Reflecting and Planning (Beginning Semester 1, 2009)
- Step 3 Integrating the Policy into Everyday Business (2009 – 2011 and beyond)

The Introductory Guide has been prepared for principals and workplace managers as an overview to assist with Step 1. Further guides will follow for Steps 2 and 3. (Please refer to Appendix Three for suggested focus questions for Steps 2 and 3).

The Policy and the Introductory Guide are available to staff and community members from the Department’s policy site at https://www.det.nsw.edu.au/policies/students/access_equity/aborig_edu/PD20080385.html.

Primary responsibility for enacting the Policy rests with Departmental staff and therefore this document includes some links to materials available to staff on the Department’s internal website (intranet). Community members could access these with the assistance of staff members, through local schools, TAFE colleges and other departmental offices.

Additional documents for community information will also be available from this site.

Further support materials can be downloaded from the Department’s intranet site for staff at https://detwww.det.nsw.edu.au/lists/directoratesaz/aet/index.htm. A list of these materials, resources and useful links is included in Appendix Two.

Aboriginal cultural education

This Introductory Guide includes specific information about Building Cultural Competencies in Aboriginal Cultures as this is an integral part of the successful implementation of the Policy. Detailed support, including activities, will be progressively available from the intranet at https://detwww.det.nsw.edu.au/lists/directoratesaz/aet/policystrategy/competencies/index.htm.
Step 1 - Introducing the Policy

Unpacking the Policy – key points for principals and managers

All staff

This Policy applies to all employees of the Department. It includes specific responsibilities for staff within all public education and training sectors in NSW and describes Aboriginal education and training as core business for all staff.

Some implications:

- All staff will need opportunities to become familiar with the details of the Policy.
- More time may be needed to engage staff in understanding the relevance of their work to the overall goal of the Policy in schools or settings where there are no students, or a small number of students who identify as Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander.
- Building Cultural Competencies in Aboriginal Cultures emphasises an approach where relevant learning will be applied through different work roles. This will assist non-teaching staff, who may not immediately see the relevance of their work to Aboriginal education and training.
- The phrase ‘core business for all staff’ could be a productive focus for discussion.

Three continuing focus areas

The following areas for action in Aboriginal education and training identified in previous policies and related plans will continue in this Policy:

- improving the educational outcomes of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students
- building increased knowledge and understanding of Aboriginal Australia for all staff and students
- strengthening collaborative decision making with Aboriginal people and communities.

Some implications:

- For school staff and Aboriginal community members who are familiar with the previous Aboriginal Education Policy (2006) these points relate to the yellow, black and red circles that were found to be very useful in that policy. This connection is likely to be valued.
- ‘Increased knowledge and understanding of Aboriginal Australia for all … students’ can be clarified by wording in the sections of the policy that make specific references to them, for example: ‘provide all students with opportunities to develop deeper understandings of Aboriginal histories, cultures and languages through:
  - Aboriginal studies
• Aboriginal languages
• Aboriginal cross-curriculum content within schools
• relevant studies in TAFE and community education.

In many teaching and learning communities significant efforts have been made to establish excellent collaboration with Aboriginal people and communities. The idea of placing emphasis on ‘continuous life long learning’ is to encourage reflective practices where successes can be celebrated and a continuing cycle of development pursued.

The goal of the Policy

‘Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students will match or better the outcomes of the broader student population’

Some implications:

• This goal is concerned with ‘closing the learning achievement gap’ for Aboriginal students in NSW. It requires staff to set their expectations for Aboriginal students as high as those for any other student. Comparing Aboriginal students’ achievements with those of other Aboriginal students is not appropriate for this goal.

A new explicit focus

There is a new explicit emphasis on developing cultural competencies in Aboriginal cultures for all staff.

Some implications:

• Questions are likely to be raised from Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal staff and community on how this requirement will be undertaken. A general overview of Pathways to Building Cultural Competencies in Aboriginal Cultures is included on Page 8. Further information and advice for engaging with the first step of the Pathways approach is available on the Intranet site.
Tasks for Introducing the Policy

Each workplace will need to consider the Policy in a way that meets local contexts. The following tasks for principals and workplace managers are provided as a guide. The proforma in Appendix Four can be used as a planning tool in undertaking these tasks.

Pathways to Building Cultural Competencies in Aboriginal Cultures

The Policy mandates ‘Aboriginal Cultural Education through professional learning and career development experiences for all staff’

This is achievable through building Cultural Competencies in Aboriginal Cultures

What do we mean by Cultural Competencies?

- Cultural Competencies in Aboriginal Cultures are those knowledges and skills that are required to engage with Aboriginal peoples in all settings in order to build and maintain relationships and continually improve service delivery.

By enabling learning pathways to build Cultural Competencies in Aboriginal Cultures

A flexible learning approach based on individual needs and understandings:

Document history
The first Aboriginal Education Policy released in 1982 focused on the advancement of Aboriginal communities and an appreciation of Aboriginal cultures and societies by other Australians.

A decade later, this landmark policy was reviewed to make the policy relevant to schools with small numbers of Aboriginal students.

The 1996 Aboriginal Education Policy had three focus areas:
- Aboriginal students
- Aboriginal communities
- All staff, students and schools.

Many Aboriginal communities and a range of staff made significant contributions to the development and implementation of this policy.

In October 2003, the NSW Government announced a review of the effectiveness of the provision of Aboriginal education and training for Aboriginal students in New South Wales. The Aboriginal Education Review raised concerns about the consistency with which the Aboriginal Education Policy had been implemented and recommended that the Aboriginal Education Policy be updated in partnership with the NSW AECG Inc.

As a result the Aboriginal Education Policy has been updated as an action within the Aboriginal Education and Training Strategy 2006-2008. Extensive consultations and feedback on the draft were supported by the Department and the NSW AECG Inc. Feedback was received from 189 group and individual submissions. More than 1000 people were involved.

Main changes since previous version
1. This policy applies to all sectors of public education and training and all Departmental employees, not just to the school sector.
2. The policy articulates the Department’s commitments to Aboriginal education and training in response to the Aboriginal Education Review.
3. Specific actions to be undertaken to respond to the 71 recommendations of the Aboriginal Education Review are specified in the Aboriginal Education Strategy 2006-2008 which is an implementation document for the policy.
4. Specific responsibilities for staff are included.
5. Monitoring will occur through the Director, Aboriginal Education and Training.
6. The policy complies with the format now required for all Departmental policies.
